Most technology startups fail within the first five years.

Businesses and investors lose billions in investment capital every year.

New company or product investment is a risky business and one where failure is an expected part of the game. Targeted at early stage and growing companies as well as VCs backing new ventures, our New Venture Market Validation Accelerator tool helps reduce risk and test marketing strategy where it counts: before launch. Understand the market dynamics affecting your product or service and gather the market intelligence you need to overcome obstacles and successfully carry out your venture backed business plan.
